PICTURE PERCEPTION

Picture perception is the process of attaining awareness of understanding of the environment by organizing and interpreting sensory information. All perception involves signals in the nervous system, which in turn result from physical stimulation of the sense organs. Picture perception is not the passive receipt of these signals, but can be shaped by learning, memory and expectation.

Visual perception of displayed images is a key factor in human decision making," Vishwanath notes, "Properly describing how humans view and perceive images will provide a better understanding of why people respond positively to some images and negatively to others.
